PACIFIC Project

Advisory Committee Overview

PACIFIC Project

The Planning Correctional Facilities on Tribal Lands Discretionary Grant Program (BJA Planning Grant Program) provides federal resources through Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA) grants to American Indian and Alaskan Native Tribes to assist in cost effectively planning facilities associated with the incarceration and rehabilitation of juvenile and adult offenders subject to tribal jurisdiction.

BJA provides training and technical assistance (TA) services to BJA Planning Grant Program recipients through the Planning Alternatives and Correctional Institutions For Indian Country (PACIFIC) Project. BJA working through its TA provider Justice Solutions Group (JSG), and in collaboration with an advisory committee comprised of representatives of federal agencies and organizations that have a stake in Indian Country corrections (PACIFIC Project Advisory Committee), is supporting the development of curricula and publications, the provision of technical assistance, and the dissemination of information to assist tribal planning teams. These materials present justice system and correctional facility planning as an interactive, dynamic process that Tribes engage in to:

- identify local or regional factors that contribute to crime and delinquency;
- identify local or regional strengths and resources that prevent crime and delinquency;
- understand the continuum of services and sanctions that address crime, delinquency and recidivism; and
- plan appropriately designed and sized facilities that are integrated within an effective continuum of services that are responsive to tribal and/or regional needs.

PACIFIC Advisory Committee

Tribal justice systems are markedly and rightfully different from federal, state, and county systems in ways that present a unique set of challenges to planning justice-related facilities in Indian Country. There is a complex web of jurisdictional, administrative, and funding issues that impact the construction and operation of Indian Country jails and justice services.

Tribes must work cooperatively and collaboratively with multiple agencies to ensure the success of their new detention or correctional facilities. Among the many agencies/departments that play a role in Indian Country Corrections:

- Department of Justice (DOJ), Office of Justice Programs (OJP), Bureau of Justice Assistance (BJA)
- DOJ, Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention (OJJDP)
- DOJ, Office of Tribal Justice (OTJ)
- Department of Health and Human Services (HHS), Indian Health Service (IHS)
- Department of the Interior (DOI), Bureau of Indian Education (BIE)
- DOI, Bureau of Indian Affairs (BIA), Office of Facilities Management and Construction (OFMC)
- DOI, BIA, Division of Corrections, Office of Justice Services (OJS)
- Executive Office of the United States Attorneys
- Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA)
- Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD)

Representatives of the foregoing agencies have come together as part of the PACIFIC Project Advisory Committee. This Directory provides the following information for each of the member agencies/departments:

- Brief description of agency/department;
- Contact information; and
- Summary of relevant services, resources and assistance offered.

Captain Gary Shelton

responsible party

Agency Description

IHS, an agency within the Department of Health and Human Services, is responsible for providing federal health services to American Indians and Alaska Natives. The provision of health services to members of federally-recognized tribes grew out of the special government-to-government relationship between the federal government and Indian tribes. IHS is the principal federal health care provider and health advocate for Indian people, and its goal is to raise their health status to the highest possible level. IHS provides a comprehensive health service delivery system for approximately 1.9 million American Indians and Alaska Natives who belong to 562 federally recognized tribes in 35 states.

Due to the unique needs of detention and correctional facilities in Indian Country it can not be assumed that the Indian Health Service will be able to provide medical and behavioral health services without careful coordination and planning between the detention center/correction facility and the local Indian Health System health care facility.

Keith Moore

responsible party

Agency Description

BIE's mission is to provide quality education opportunities from early childhood through life in accordance with a tribe's needs for cultural and economic well-being, in keeping with the wide diversity of Indian tribes and Alaska Native villages as distinct cultural and governmental entities...Further, the BIE is to manifest consideration of the whole person by taking into account the spiritual, mental, physical, and cultural aspects of the individual within his or her family and tribal or village context.

In School Year 2007-2008, the 184 Bureau-funded elementary and secondary schools, located on 64 reservations in 23 states, served approximately 48,000 Indian students. Of these, 59 are BIE-operated and 125 are tribally operated under BIE contracts or grants. The Bureau also funds or operates off-reservation boarding schools and peripheral dormitories near reservations for students attending public schools. The BIE also serves American Indian and Alaska Native post secondary students through higher education scholarships and support funding for tribal colleges and universities. The fiscal year 2009 funding is provided to 26 tribal colleges and universities. The BIE directly operates two post secondary institutions: the Haskell Indian Nations University (HINU) in Lawrence, Kansas, and the Southwest Indian Polytechnic Institute (SIPI) in Albuquerque, New Mexico.

U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), Federal Bureau of Prisons (BOP), National Institute of Corrections (NIC)

Virginia Hutchinson

responsible party

Agency Description

NIC provides technical assistance, training, and information services to federal, state, local, and Indian country corrections agencies. There are several divisions within NIC:

- The Jails, Community Corrections, and Prison Divisions provide services on issues specific to their area of corrections.
- The Transition and Offender Workforce Division provides services related to 1) improving employment opportunities for offenders and ex-offenders and 2) helping prison and jail inmates make a successful transition back to their communities after incarceration.
- The Academy Division provides training programs on leadership and management.

NIC also has an Information Center, which contains a large library of materials on all areas of corrections. Information Center staff research topics upon request and send materials, free of charge, to the requestor. Corrections practitioners and others interested in corrections may use Information Center services.

Provides services related to female offenders, improving agency culture, developing high-performance organizations, and preventing inmate-on-inmate sexual abuse and staff sexual misconduct with inmates.

Relevant Services, Resources & Assistance

Although jails will find relevant assistance in a variety of NIC divisions, the Jails Division focuses solely on issues facing jails. The Jails Division offers technical assistance, training, and information services under four initiatives:

- Jail Administration
- Inmate Behavior Management
- New-Jail Planning
- Jail Standards and Inspections
