National Conference on Missing & Unidentified Persons

Sponsorship Information

Why Should You Support Our Annual Conference?

According to the FBI's National Crime Information Center, as of September 2014, there were 83,957 missing persons in the United States – 50,569 were adults and 33,388 were under the age of 18. While media often reports cases of abduction, many missing persons cases involve those who are absent from their homes due to a variety of reasons and a multitude of life stressors. The Missing and Unidentified Persons Conference (MUPC) focuses on marginalized and underreported groups of missing persons who often possess vulnerabilities that make them more at risk for harm, including physical and mental disabilities, emotional or physical abuse, substance dependence, aging, trauma, and catastrophic events.

The 11th Annual MUPC will focus on these vulnerable populations and the tragic circumstances behind their disappearance, whether due to criminal events or natural disasters. Titled Multiple Victim Events and Serial Crimes – Implications for Investigation, Search, Rescue, and Recovery, the conference will provide information on effective search and rescue strategies and approaches, death and forensic investigations, unidentified remains, and long-term missing person's cases. The National Criminal Justice Training Center (NCJTC) of Fox Valley Technical College is partnering again this year with the National Association For Search and Rescue (NASAR) to broaden the conference scope and continue its tradition of offering dynamic speakers who provide broad knowledge and expertise to the program.

Your contribution will help to ensure that those who respond to and investigate missing persons and crimes against persons are prepared in the event an unforeseen tragedy occurs. Your donation will give these men and women tools and resources to recover missing persons and reunite them with their loved ones.

Conference At-A-Glance

This annual conference attracts hundreds of professionals from throughout the country and internationally from law enforcement, search and rescue, first responders, medical examiners, coroners, missing person clearinghouses, non-profit organizations, mental health, social services, criminal justice system agencies, veteran and military service organizations, forensics, families of missing persons, and many others.

Who is the National Criminal Justice Training Center?

Fox Valley Technical College's National Criminal Justice Training Center (NCJTC) has over 20 years of experience providing high-quality national training and technical assistance to agencies, organizations, and individuals in the criminal justice field. NCJTC combines the skills and abilities of staff and more than 400 expert consultants located throughout the nation to provide training that is targeted, current, and cost effective. NCJTC has provided the field with innovative tools for locating the missing, with an emphasis on developing collaborative approaches for responding to missing persons' cases. For additional information about NCJTC, visit www.ncjtc.org.

Who is the National Association For Search And Rescue?

The National Association For Search And Rescue (NASAR), which began in 1972, was originally started to represent the State Search and Rescue Coordinators. Since then NASAR has grown to represent all SAR volunteers and continues to support the State Search and Rescue Coordinators Committee. NASAR uses standards developed by ASTM, NFPA, DHS, FEMA, and other respected bodies to build education courseware, publications, and certifications. Government agencies and non-profit Search and Rescue Teams use NASAR's material and certifications to build credentialing programs for their organizations and produce highly skilled searchers that work within their communities and are available for mutual aid regionally and nationally. NASAR is a Virginia Non-Profit and Federal 501(C)3. For additional information about NASAR, visit <http://www.nasar.org/>.
