SMART Funding

- The SMART Office continues to support the SORNA Tribal Training and Technical Assistance Program:
  - NCJTC provides training and technical assistance to help tribal jurisdictions substantially implement SORNA.

  - NCJTC provides training and technical assistance to support tribes who have substantially implemented SORNA.

  - Initiate the Native American Sex Offender Management (NASOM) Project in 4 tribal communities.

SMART Funding

- Applying CoSA in Indian Country
  - Support the development of a holistic program for those affected by crime by providing support for the victim, encouraging responsibility for the offender, and facilitating changes designed to minimize the risk of future abuse.
    - NCJTC provides training and technical assistance
    - Santo Domingo Pueblo (Kewa Pueblo) funded to develop a CoSA program

CSNAP Project Goal

In an effort to meet a US Department of Justice priority, the CSNAP Project's goal is to reduce violent crime. This project has the potential to complement existing SORNA programs by providing additional controls over registered sex offenders.

Learning Objectives

- At the end of this session, the learner will
  - define CSNAP and how it can fill the gap in the criminal justice system for certain sex offenders;
  - examine how CSNAP can assist in addressing community concerns with returning sex offenders;
  - identify local resources to develop a path to improve the monitoring of sex offenders in the community;
  - analyze the necessary information to determine if CSNAP is a potential fit for the tribal community;
  - create 'next steps' and the application/screening process to participate in CSNAP.

Native American Sex Offender Management

Purpose of the Native American Sex Offender Management (NASOM) Program

- The NASOM Program was created to identify and develop evidence-based and best practice community safety and accountability intervention programs for American Indian/Alaska Native (AI/AN) adults and juveniles who have committed sexual offenses.

- The Program seeks to identify and develop existing resources and provide expertise rather than funding.

NASOM Objective

- Identify specific tribal sites to serve as case studies for implementation of sex offender community safety net accountability programs

- Identify existing programs and providers

- Identify existing tools currently being used with AI/AN adults and juvenile who commit sexual offences.

Cheyenne & Arapaho Tribe of Oklahoma

Menominee Tribe of Wisconsin

Oglala Sioux Tribe of the Pine Ridge Reservation

Pueblo of Isleta

CoSA Program

- Provide training and technical assistance to tribes who receive grant funding from the SMART Office to implement CoSA
- Develop general CoSA materials for use by tribes

Circles of Support & Accountability (CoSA)

- Based on the theory of wraparound care
- Developed in late 1960s in Canada
- Core Principles
  - No one is disposable
  - No one does this alone
  - No more victims
  - Community has a responsibility to victims and to those who offend against them.
