NCJTC Staff Receives Servant Leadership Award!

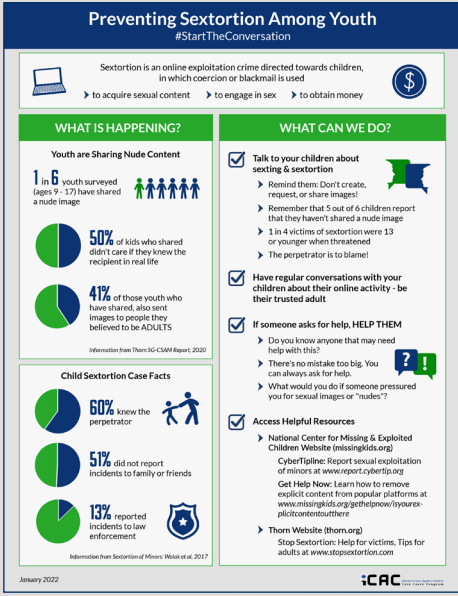

Congratulations to Roicia Banks, MSW, a project coordinator with the National Criminal Justice Training Center of Fox Valley Technical College (NCJTC). Roicia was recently selected as a recipient of the 2022 Arizona State University Martin Luther King Jr. Student Servant-Leadership Award.

Roicia is currently working toward her Master of Legal Studies with an emphasis in Indigenous Legal Law at ASU. She started her role with NCJTC in July 2020, and provides training and technical assistance to the tribal awardees of grants provided through the Office for Victims of Crime.

Child sexual exploitation has increased dramatically during the past few years. With schools moving to virtual learning, employees working from home, and more time spent on social media or gaming, families continue to be susceptible to danger on the internet. 2020 was a record-breaking year, with more than 21.7 million reports of suspected child sexual exploitation made to NCMEC’s CyberTipline (missingkids.org). This marks the highest number of reports ever received in one year.

Online exploitation includes sextortion, a crime where victims are groomed to take sexually explicit images, or engage in sexual conversations online. In recognition of Safer Internet Day on February 8, we are sharing this infographic to help protect youth from sextortion.

Solving Crimes and Supporting Victims of Sexual Abuse

Since 2008, NCJTC has offered training and technical assistance in the area of sex offender management, child sexual abuse, and exploitation. Through grant funding and contract services, we support the efforts of victim service providers, law enforcement, forensic interviewers, social workers, and others by helping build skills around serving victims of crime and bringing their offenders to justice. We invite you to explore our training opportunities that address sexual abuse, exploitation and sex offender management topics.
