National Native American Heritage Month

Online Learning

What's New

November is National Native American Heritage Month. As the month comes to a close, we continue to celebrate the rich and diverse cultures, traditions, and histories of Native Americans as well as acknowledge the important contributions of Native people. We are proud to serve Tribal community leaders and criminal justice practitioners by helping them build strong justice systems and address unique and complex community and public safety challenges.

Take a look at the training opportunities we offer at ncjtc.org/tribal.

What's New at NCJTC?

AMBER Advocate Double Issue features:

An in-depth look at the considerations that are most important to the eight parents of missing children who helped us create the new multimedia Fifth Edition of When Your Child Is Missing: A Family Survival Guide. The resource not only highlights their advice for other parents navigating chaose but also what low enforcement can learn from their experiences (and chaos, but also what law enforcement can learn from their experiences (and easy ways they can use the Guide to help families).

A spotlight on the new memoir of one of the Guide's parent-authors, Patty Wetterling (Dear Jacob: A Mother's Journey of Hope). Patty is a longtime advocate for missing children and has advised countless law enforcement officers on how to best work with families of missing children (encapsulated in our five takeaways from her book).

NCJTC offices will be closed in observance of the Thanksgiving holiday, November 23-November 26. We will be back to serve you on November 27. In case you missed last month's newsletter focused on Internet of Things, click here.
