Helpful Resources to Combat GenAI

For School Leaders, SRO's and other professionals

Several sessions at SRO 2025 addressed the growing risks associated with AI and the challenges students and young adults face when using social media and emerging technologies. To build on these important discussions and in recognition of Internet Safety Month, we're sharing a guidance document for schools focused on deepfake awareness and prevention. This resource was developed by The Online Child Exploitation Prevention Initiative (OCEPI) to help combat the troubling rise of AI-generated CSAM (Child Sexual Abuse Material), a disturbing trend where students are targeted by their peers using advanced AI tools. . From This Year's Attendees...

✓ "Such a great training. I love how trainings and networkings aren't forced and that we can choose the speakers best to fit our agency. Very eye opening speakers and I feel like I get something out each year I come back!" -Beau J.

✓ "This is the first time I have attended an NCJTC training, and it has been very informative. I'm not an SRO, but I believe administration and student service team members can learn from many of these presentations and to ensure our students remain safe. Thank you for the time and effort you have put into this fantastic conference!" -Rebecca M.

✓ "The SRO conference by NCJTC has beenthe most organized training I've ever attended" - Corey M.

"The instructors and speakers truly set NCJTC apart. Each one brought deep knowledge and real-world experience to the classroom, making the material not only informative but also highly relevant and engaging. They created an interactive and supportive learning environment, always open to questions and discussion." - Brandon M.
